PATENT OFFICE RULE MAY BE OVERTURNED

Important Question Involved in Order by U. S. Supreme Court Against District Court of Appeals.

The Supreme Court of the United States is expected to dispose Monday of the petition of Herman Frasch for a writ of mandamus to the Court of Appeals of the District. The case involves a question of much importance to the Patent Office, and if the petitioner wins it will result in overturning the practice of that office in respect to an old-established rule.

Under the present rules a person desiring a process and an apparatus must make an application on the process and another on the apparatus, and must secure distinct patents on each. If the contention of the petitioner is upheld then a single application and a single patent will cover both process and apparatus.

Mr. Frasch, who is said to be backed by large interests, took an appeal from the ruling of the Commissioner of Patents to the Court of Appeals of the District. The Court of Appeals has ruled that it had no jurisdiction, since, in the opinion of the court, the ruling of the Commissioner of Patents was not an appealable decision. Now the petitioner has appealed to the Supreme Court to compel the Court of Appeals to reinstate the appeal and decide the case. The Supreme Court has issued a rule to show cause why a mandamus should not issue, and the writ is returnable Monday.

The Solicitor General has filed with the Supreme Court of the United States a memorandum in the case of George C. Thomas, plaintiff in error, versus the United States, and in the case of Chesapeake, plaintiff in error, versus the United States, asking that these cases and another case of the Sprockels Sugar Refining Company versus Penrose A. McClain, collector, be heard at the same time. The cases involve the question whether the taxes imposed by the war revenue act of 1898 are direct or indirect, and raise questions as to the validity of that act.

ALBANY, Oct. 17.—Before the court of appeals yesterday argument was begun in the appeal of Albert J. Adams, the so-called "policy king," from a two years' sentence for having policy slips in his possession. ## MEDICAL SUPERVISORS AGAIN REQUEST PAY Report Contains Threat of Prosecution Against Physicians Who Are Guilty of Unprofessional Methods.

The sixth annual report of the Board of Medical Supervisors of the District of Columbia was submitted to the Commissioners this morning by Dr. J. B. Gregg Custis, president of the board. The report is accompanied by recommendations aiming at greater efficiency of the board as to its purposes and administration.

The board does not think its members should serve longer without compensation, and again requests the Commissioners to obtain from Congress an appropriation of $2,500 for this purpose. The report follows, in part:

"At the beginning of the year they had pending before them for action thirty-one applications. They received during the year seventy-seven applications. Two of the applicants were refused admission to the examinations. Five with-drew their applications. Licenses after examination were issued to sixty-three. The subject of reciprocity in the matter of examinations has been under consideration for some time. The lack of uniformity in the medical practice acts in the several States is to be regretted, as it forms the chief barrier to the establishment of the much desired reciprocity. As we believe that the law under which we are organized is the most practical of any so far enacted, we would recommend it as a model to the legislatures of the several States."

Regarding practitioners who "are openly using methods unprofessional and dishonorable," the report says: "At the request of the Commissioners, and, after several conferences, the board, under date of June 13, in a letter set forth a plan by which the police and law departments of the District government may present and prosecute such delinquents before the Board of Medical Supervisors. The recommendations contained in this letter have now been approved by both the District Attorney and the Commissioners, and we have every reason to hope that before another report is made there will, at least, be no more open and flagrant disregard of the time-honored rules of medical practice and of the standards of morality as founded by the medical profession."

MATRIMONIAL RACE FOR A $2,000 PURSE

By Use of a Special Train It Was Won by Margin of Twenty-five Minutes.

KANKAKEE, Oct. 17.—A matrimonial race with a $2,000 purse and four starters was run last night. Lucy and Sadie Wright, of Kankakee, accompanied by their fiancés, were the starters. An aunt had provided in her will that the first of the nieces to marry should receive $2,000. The sisters agreed that they would have a double wedding and divide the money.

Sadie was betrothed to Mr. Parkinson, who lives in Centralia, Ill., and Lucy's fiancé is William Weeks, of Kankakee. But a hitch arose in the double wedding arrangement, and Lucy surprised her sister on Wednesday night by informing her that she was to be married next day. Without a word Sadie rushed to the city, and, half an hour later, was reading this message:

"Come at once. Lucy about to marry. Oh, do come. SADIE."

The last train for Kankakee had left, but Mr. Parkinson hired a special train, and in a few minutes was speeding over the rails, arriving in Kankakee before daylight.

But once he found that his fiancée had gone to a farm house four miles out in the country, leaving word for him to procure a clergyman and meet her there.

Finding preachers at 3:30 a. m. was not exactly in Mr. Parkinson's line, he began a wild hunt for one, and at 4 o'clock, with a man of the cloth in close captivity, started in a livery rig to meet his bride.

Before the sun was half an hour high there was a telephone call in the farmhouse, and the bride, Mr. Parkinson was called to the phone.

"This is Lucy, Lucy Weeks, if you please," said a voice at the other end of the wire. "I heard of your telegram, so will and I got married early this morning. James ought to be with you pretty soon now, so when he comes give him our regards—Will's and mine."

"But when were you married?" was the half-tremulous query from the farm house.

"At 5:30," was the triumphant reply.

"Five-thirty?" mused Mrs. Parkinson. "Why you were just twenty-five minutes late. We were married at 5:05."

The victors are in Chicago; the losers are speeding eastward.

AUDITOR'S SUCCESSOR MAY BE MR. FOSNES

Place Declined by Thoughtful Minneapolis Man.

Dispatches from St. Paul, Minn., say that William Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis, has been offered the position of Auditor for the Postoffice Department, vice Capt. Henry A. Castle, resigned, and has declined it.

In a letter to Secretary Shaw, Mr. Eustis said he did not think it would be for the best interests of the Republic to have the Auditorship go to Minneapolis, in view of the recent appointment of Eugene G. Hay to a position on the Board of General Appraisers. The dispatches further say Mr. Fosnes, the present head of the rural free delivery system, may now succeed Captain Castle.

LABOR CHIEFS COULD REPUBLICANIZE RUSSIA

So Declares Erie Railroad's Industrial Commissioner, Praising the Union Leader.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—"The Czar says that Russia is not ready for a republic, that its people cannot be organized. Put Roosevelt or Cleveland or Bryan at the head of twenty labor leaders, whom I could select, and in one year they would organize the people of Russia and make them ready for self-government."

This tribute to the ability of some of the leaders of organized labor in the United States was paid last night by Louis Jackson, of New York, industrial commissioner of the Erie Railroad, in an address at a dinner of the Chicago real estate board. Other speakers in the evening joined in his praise of union labor and union leaders.

Mr. Jackson's declaration of the power of labor leaders was prefaced by the following assertion:

"A few men at the head of the labor movement have organized a union of 1,000,000, and in time of national trouble they could organize as great an army for the national defense. To these men credit and reward is due."

"The factory bell of the big city should not ring before 8 a. m. Real estate men of the big cities should unite to this end. Then the laborer may have his little home in the suburb, will have time for his bath and his breakfast, and can get to his work in time."

"When he is asked to strike on a trivial issue he will consider his home and will be restrained from hasty action by the same influence that restrains the man who controls millions of invested capital."

VETERANS AT BANQUET CONCLUDE CEREMONIES

Joint Celebration by Great Army Societies.

SHERMAN EXERCISES END MANY ELOQUENT SPEAKERS

Five Hundred Persons Hear Addresses by Notable Men—Mrs. Logan Speaks.

Ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the statue of General Sherman came to a fitting close last night with a banquet at the Arlington Hotel, at which the hosts were the Societies of the Armies of the Tennessee, Cumberland, Ohio, and Potomac.

Five hundred persons sat around the three long banquet tables for more than three hours, discussing the elaborate menu and listening to the addresses which followed. The speakers were Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke, U. S. A., retired, on behalf of the Army of the Potomac; Capt. John J. McCook, on behalf of the Army of the Cumberland; Mrs. John A. Logan, who paid a glowing tribute to the memory of General Sherman; Father Thomas E. Sherman, who eulogized the soldiers who fought under his father, and Sergt. Maj. John McElroy, on behalf of the Army of the Ohio.

A Scene of Beauty.

Decorations of the banquet hall made an impression upon the veteran guests which will be lasting. The walls were draped in the national colors, palms and ferns were arranged in the corners, American Beauty roses were on every table, and ropes of oak leaves and mistle were twined among suspended flags. The banquet probably will be the last many of the veterans will attend, at which they may meet so many of their comrades and listen to tributes to the courageous leader whose memory they worship.

Before the speaking was begun Archbishop John Ireland, of St. Paul, former chaplain of the Fifth Minnesota Volunteers, Army of the Tennessee, invoked a divine blessing upon the assembly. General Brooke reviewed the history of the Army of the Potomac; and Capt. McCook, the history of the Army of the Cumberland.

Mrs. Logan's Remarks.

After paying one of the most beautiful tributes to the courage, honesty, and soldierly character of General Sherman, Mrs. Logan referred to the estrangement existing at one time between General Sherman and Logan. She declared this had been wholly obliterated by her husband's tribute to General Sherman at a banquet on the occasion of his retirement from the position of general of the army. During the last year of their lives they saw much of each other, forgetting in the happy circumstances of reunited friendship, the unfavorable winds that temporarily estranged them.

Father Sherman once given a great address on historical details and military experiences not his own. At the conclusion of his speech, he remarked that perhaps he had done the unusual thing in speaking of his father in terms of praise, and asked permission for taking advantage of the opportunity to lay an additional wreath upon his tomb.
